About the Journal

Founded in 2005, Revista Universitară de Sociologie is an international academic journal addressing researchers, professors, doctoral students, practitioners, policy-makers, and the wider academic community in the social sciences.

The journal publishes original research articles and review papers covering a wide range of sociological topics, including:

- social problems and social policy;
- political sociology;
- sociology of education;
- labour market and employment challenges;
- social development and community studies;
- social work and applied sociology;
- family sociology;
- criminality and social deviance;

- health and demographic issues;
- media and communication studies.

While both theoretical and conceptual contributions are welcomed, authors are particularly encouraged to submit applied research articles.

AUTHOR GUIDELINES

A. General Instructions

Authors must ensure that manuscripts are submitted before the deadline indicated for the respective issue (see the “Call for Papers” section on the journal website). Submissions received after the deadline will not be processed.

The journal publishes manuscripts exclusively in English.

Manuscripts should be submitted by email to:

rus.craiova@gmail.com

After submission, authors will receive a notification (approximately within one week) regarding the general eligibility of the manuscript, including:

- correspondence with the aim and scope of the journal;
- compliance with the Author Guidelines and formatting requirements.

Scientific quality is not evaluated at this stage.

If a manuscript does not comply with the Journal Guidelines, it will be returned to the author for technical corrections.

If, after resubmission, the manuscript still does not comply with the guidelines, it will be rejected and the author will be informed accordingly.

Only manuscripts that fully comply with the journal’s formatting and reference requirements will proceed to peer review.

All manuscripts undergo double-blind peer review.
